City councillor peddles bike lane removal motion

Gearing up for a fight.
No one is pleased with the end result: Walters

 RYAN TUMILTY
ryan.tumilty@metronews.ca

Bike lanes the city put down last year could be coming right back up if one city councillor gets his way this week.

Coun. Mike Walters plans to introduce a motion this week to have the lanes on 40 Avenue, 95 Avenue, 106 Street and Saddleback Road removed and relocated to other areas in the community.

Walters said he believes in bike lanes, but these lanes were done without proper community consultation and no one is pleased with the end result.

"The breadth of the opposition is not just drivers who don't want bike lanes," he said.

Walters said the lanes don't have community support and if they don't lead to more cycling they won't be worth the cost of installing them.

"It's important to me that the community has actually bought in," he said.

Walters said the city's bike plan was inadequately funded, which led to the city putting them in areas they didn't belong.

"We funded them to do it on the cheap and that's what we got," he said.

Due diligence

"It's not that simple. You have to go into a neighbourhood and see what's ... happening." Coun. Mike Walters Walters said he respects the city's plan to create a cycling network, but it has to know what's happening in communities.

Chris Chan, executive director of the Edmonton Bicycle Commuters' Society, said before anything is done with the lanes he would like more time to see how they're doing.

"These new lanes should be evaluated and the criteria for the evaluation should be clear," he said. "We do want to see that it's supported by evidence."

Chan said if the city wants to remove the existing lanes, he would like to see where they are being relocated first and some sound evidence around why that would make them better.

Walters' motion will come Wednesday, when councillors consider a report on the city's public consultation efforts.

Travel. 511 roads 'lifeline' aids 1.2M

More than a million travellers in a hurry to get going — even when it's snowing — have made use of Alberta's 511 road conditions service in its first year of operations.

Figures provided to Metro on Monday indicate 1.2 million unique visitors have ventured to 511.alberta.ca, which features real-time road conditions, travel and construction advisories, as well as the latest highway camera images.

The 511 phone hotline has also proved popular on days when navigating Alberta roads has proven particularly challenging. For example, on June 19 the service received just 192 calls; however, the very next day, more than 5,600 inquiries flooded the system as historic floodwaters roared into the southern communities and left many major routes impassable.

Alberta Transportation spokesperson Karen Sigurdson said the service also proved valuable as record snowfalls blanketed Calgary in December and Edmonton was also hit with repeated winter blasts.

"I've had people tell me it's become their lifeline.... What we really want to do is give people the tools so they can make their own decisions about driving safety," Sigurdson said.

Edmonton resident Susan Funke touted the benefits of 511 after tweeting an inquiry about Highway 2 conditions at the service's operators Monday morning after a light dusting of snow hit the Calgary area.

"All morning I stewed about — 'Should I go? Should I not go?'" said Funke, who planned to visit some friends for the day. "Then they (511 operators) got back to me and said things were clear.... It took five to 10 minutes." JEREMY NOLAIS/METRO

Mill Woods. Two dead, one injured after garage explosion

Two people are dead and a third person is in hospital following an explosion and fire in Mill Woods Monday night.

Edmonton fire rescue services were called shortly before 7 p.m. after reports of an explosion in a garage on Lee Ridge Drive.

Laura Ruddock, the fire department's public information officer, said that 26 firefighters and six apparatus were at the scene within minutes and found one injured person, but they did not know about the other victims until the fire was under control.

"Upon getting the fire under control, two individuals were discovered deceased," she said.

She said the person who was taken to hospital was suffering from burns and other injuries, the extent of which were unknown.

Mill Woods resident Jennifer Blair said she was shocked to come home Monday evening and find police in the area.

After recently moving from Mundare to Edmonton, she says she's never experienced anything like this before, adding it's been a generally peaceful neighbourhood to live in.

Ruddock said Edmonton police were working with Edmonton fire in the investigation, but they were in the very early stages of the investigation.

"We don't have a cause that is being investigated," she said. "We know there was an explosion in the garage, which caused the fire, and that is as much information as we have at this time."

Preferred rates for clients travelling on transit for just a few stops, or after hours, are all elements the board feels should be considered before council progresses with planning, said Minix.

how they procure those funds, might have an impact on passengers," she said.

The business case studied by the advisory board included an estimated savings of $25.8 million over 10 years from reduced fare evasion, something they said isn't justified at this time.

Coun. Amarjeet Sohi thinks the city needs to be "cautious" moving forward in developing transit fares, but that the advisory board's recommendations do have some merit.

"At the end of the day, we want to keep the system affordable," he said.

Desperate plea. Man who lost wife wants city to erect barrier

An Edmonton man is imploring city councillors to consider a permanent barrier on the High Level Bridge, where his wife took her life last year.

Dan Klemke came to the community services committee Monday to discuss the issue, which former mayor Stephen Mandel raised last year.

Councillors voted to install distress telephone lines on the bridge immediately and to study three potential designs for a permanent barrier on the bridge. Those options have been estimated to cost between $600,000 and $2.9 million.

Klemke told councillors that the High Level had been a focal point for suicidal people for far too long. "The High Level Bridge has been a monument to tragedy for as long as I can remember," he said.

Klemke said extending the sections of the bridge that are currently protected with chain link fence would immediately cut down the number of suicides from the bridge.

"The time for action is now; there is an obvious cost-effective fix," he said.

Klemke conceded that people determined to commit suicide would find a way, but a barrier would stop people from making impulsive decisions.

"We just need to give some pause at that moment," he said.

Coun. Scott McKeen applauded Klemke for coming forward and talking about an

"I hope you appearing here today launches a broader conversation about this issue," he said.

Mayor Don Iveson said he is interested in the barrier, but believes the distress line is key because it can connect someone with mental-health resources.

"The presence of the call box is not the important thing, it is the presence of the person on the other end of the phone."

U of A Students' Union president Petros Kusmu. METRO FILE

University of Alberta is one step closer to being the first school in Western Canada to implement a fall reading week, as the school now waits on the provost to give the plan a green light.

Members of U of A's student union presented an updated proposal at a General Faculties Council on Monday, which includes a major redraft from previous proposals, following more than 60 consultations with various stakeholders.

"While we weren't necessarily starting off at square one, we were barely starting off at square two," said U of A's students' union president Petros Kusmu about previous attempts to introduce the break.

Planned for the week linked to Remembrance Day in November, Kusmu said the week would be jam-packed with activities for students, including those from abroad.

Acting provost Martin Ferguson-Pell said the latest proposal for a fall reading week has been well thought out.

"(A) fall reading week has been a discussion that we have had for a number of years and this proposal that is being brought forward is one that is a result of a considerable amount of consultation," he said. LEAH GERMAIN/METRO

'Dotting the I's'. Province expected to sign off on CRL soon

A few more pieces of the downtown arena puzzle should be in place soon, as the city moves toward breaking ground on the project.

The provincial cabinet is expected to sign off early this month on the proposed community-revitalization levy that councillors approved last year.

Municipal affairs spokesperson Jerry Ward said a recommendation to approve the levy is going to cabinet soon.

Edmonton's chief financial officer Lorna Rosen said the city has been in ongoing discussions with the province about the levy and she is confident the province will sign off.

"Where I spend my time worrying about risks is about those that I think might actually materialize," she said.

One of the other outstanding issues is a new lease for the Edmonton Oilers at Rexall place. The team's current lease ends in June this year and the team won't be moving into the downtown arena until September 2016.

Northlands spokesperson Cathy Kiss said the negotiations for a new lease are down to the fine details.

"We are very close to finalizing the lease extension; it is just a matter of dotting the I's and crossing the T's," she said.

Greatest tale of survival at sea – if proven true

Survivor. Spanish-speaking man says he drifted 13 months across Pacific Ocean in a 7-metre fishing boat

It's a story that almost defies belief. A man leaves Mexico in December 2012 for a day of shark fishing and ends up surviving 13 months on fish, birds and turtles before washing ashore on the remote Marshall Islands thousands of kilometres away.

But that's what a man identifying himself as 37-year-old Jose Salvador Alvarenga told of officials Monday a week after he washed ashore on the tiny atoll of Ebon in the Pacific Ocean.

Other cases

There have been other cases of people surviving for months adrift.

- Three Mexican shark fishermen in 2006 said they were lost at sea for nine months before being rescued near the Marshall Islands.
- In 1989, four men survived nearly four months in the Pacific Ocean near New Zealand after their boat capsized.

Officials were reacting cautiously to the Spanish-speaking man's story while they try to piece together more information.

The soft-spoken man complained of joint pain and had a limp but was able to walk. He had long hair and a beard, and rather than appearing emaciated he looked puffy in places, including around his ankles. Otherwise, he seemed in reasonable health.

Gee Bing, the acting secretary of foreign affairs for the Marshall Islands, said he was somewhat skeptical of Alvarenga's account after meeting with him Monday. "When we saw him, he was not really thin compared to other survivors in the past," he said.

Bing said the man had no identification, and other details of his story remained sketchy.

Vancouver deputy mayor meets IOC execs to talk LGBTQ rights

Sochi. Meeting with IOC president's senior staffers proves hopeful

 KATE WEBB
Metro in Vancouver

It took Vancouver Deputy Mayor Tim Stevenson just three days after arriving in Sochi, Russia, to get what he came for. A meeting at the office of the president of the International Olympic Committee (IOC).

The openly gay city councilor travelled across the world with the full backing of his hometown, a former Olympic host city, to urge the IOC to add sexual orientation to its charter among other unacceptable forms of discrimination.

He came away hopeful it will do just that.

"I'm pinching myself a bit," he told Metro on Monday in a phone call from the subtropical Russian city, just hours after meeting with two of the IOC president's senior staffers.

"It's far more hopeful, and I am far more positive than I thought I would be."

Stevenson explained that the new president himself, German fencer Thomas Bach, is busy meeting with heads of state and his executive board until the Games kick off Feb. 7.

But Stevenson was thrilled regardless to be able to sit down for 75 minutes with Jochem Farber, the head of the president's executive office, as well as IOC director of communications Mark Adams.

"They basically said that with the new president, Bach, he is instituting a whole renewal program of the IOC and everything is on the table for discussion with the members, including sexual orientation," Stevenson said.

The sweeping review, known as "Olympic Agenda 2020," began in December and will be discussed in the coming days by the 100-plus members of the IOC. It will culminate in December with a huge conference and vote in Monaco.

Principle 6 of the Olympic charter currently states that "Any form of discrimination with regard to a country or a person on grounds of race, religion, politics, gender or otherwise" is fundamentally incompatible with the IOC's principles.

Stevenson and his co-delegate, former VANOC spokeswoman Maureen Douglas, backed off on their initial plan to also lobby the IOC to make Pride Houses mandatory at future Olympics, after discuss-

"I think that the more I've listened to Pride House International, the more I've realized that they want to be independent of the IOC, and they don't want to be controlled by the IOC," Stevenson said.

Stevenson and Douglas, who is lesbian, intend to continue meeting with Olympic officials and LGBTQ activists in Sochi until their scheduled return to Vancouver on Feb. 9. WITH FILES FROM THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CSEC chief denies privacy breach

The head of Canada's eavesdropping agency says an effort to understand airport wireless systems did not breach the privacy of Canadians.

John Forster told a Senate committee that Communications Security Establishment Canada (CSEC) was merely collecting metadata, or data about data, and not the content of messages.

A document obtained by CBC indicates the pilot project was intended to help the agency locate kidnappers and terrorists.

The CSEC slide presentation suggests information was taken from an unidentified Canadian airport's free Wi-Fi system over a two-week period.

Forster says the agency was trying to build a mathematical model to help determine a communication pattern at a public location, in this case an airport. He says the model has subsequently been used in at least two cases to identify legitimate foreign targets.

The May 2012 presentation suggests the project could help security officials zero in on a kidnapper based in a rural area who travelled to a city to make ransom calls.

Ottawa-based CSEC monitors foreign computer, satellite, radio and telephone traffic of people, states, organizations and terrorist groups for information of intelligence interest to Canada.

It is a key player in the Five Eyes intelligence network that includes partner agencies from the United States, Britain, Australia and New Zealand.

Some civil libertarians say the agency's metadata monitoring is worrisome because even such seemingly innocuous material can reveal a lot about a person, such as their location and who they are contacting. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Cat café coming to Vancouver

The right catmosphere. New Vancouver space will allow people to socialize with cats

 EMILY JACKSON
Metro in Vancouver

A café just for cat lovers may possibly be coming to Vancouver.

Michelle Furbacher is applying for a business licence to open the "Catfé," a space where people will be able to socialize with cats while surfing the net or reading a book. Cat cafés are wildly popular in Tokyo, where dozens of shops charge customers a per-hour fee to hang out with feline furfriends while lapping up lattes. The concept has yet to take off in North America, but entrepreneurs are planning to open such venues in Montreal, San Francisco and Oakland, Calif.

Videos of the Japanese cafés inspired Furbacher's Catfé, which will act as a foster home for cats from animal shelters, she told Metro on Monday.

"People will meet the cats, fall in love with them and maybe want to adopt them," Furbacher said, adding cats will be vaccinated, fixed and screened by a vet before being chosen for the café, which could open in September. Furbacher's shop will focus on providing Wi-Fi, a small library and event space.

Olympics. Canada to 'keep an eye' on Russian involvement in Ukraine

Canada will be keeping a close eye on Russia's involvement in the turbulent Ukraine as the Winter Olympics get ready to begin in Sochi, says Foreign Affairs Minister John Baird.

Canada will continue to vigilantly monitor developments in Ukraine as the world's spotlight shifts to Russia this week, Baird told a news conference Monday.

"The Olympics are an exciting time for the athletes, for the world and for the Olympic spirit. We will very much be keeping an eye on the situation throughout Ukraine," he said.

Not so sweet. Sugar consumption linked to fatal heart problems

Could too much sugar be deadly? The biggest study of its kind suggests the answer is yes, at least when it comes to fatal heart problems.

It doesn't take all that much extra sugar, hidden in many processed foods, to substantially raise the risk, the researchers found, and most Americans eat more than the safest amount.

For most American adults, sodas and other sugary drinks are the main source of added sugar.

Adults who got at least 25 per cent of their calories from added sugar were almost three times more likely to die of heart problems than those who consumed less than 10 per cent. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Sochi. Stray dogs targeted for killing ahead of the Olympics

Thousands of stray dogs have been living amid the mud and rubble of Olympic construction sites, roaming the streets and snowy mountainsides, and begging for scraps of food.

But as the games draw near, authorities have turned to a company to catch and kill the animals so they don't bother Sochi's new visitors or even wander into an Olympic event.

Alexei Sorokin, director general of pest control firm Basya Services, told The Associated Press that his company had a contract to exterminate the animals throughout the Olympics, which open Friday.

Sorokin described his company as being involved in the "catching and disposing" of dogs, although he refused to specify how the dogs would be killed or say where they would take the carcasses.

The dogs have been causing numerous problems, Sorokin said Monday, including "biting children."

Defence. Heavy security, gay rights issue won't detract from Games: IOC

Heavy security and Russia's anti-gay law should not detract from the Sochi Olympics, IOC President Thomas Bach said Monday.

Bach also reiterated his defence of Russia's massive spending on the Winter Games, saying the money is going to the long-term transformation of the region.

Speaking at a news conference four days before the opening ceremony, Bach again voiced his backing for Russia's ability to deliver a safe Olympics amid threats of terror attacks by Islamic militants from the North Caucasus. Tens of thousands of military and police personnel have been de-

UN chief to take part in opening of Winter Olympics

Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon will take part in Friday's opening of the Winter Olympics in Sochi, Russia and deliver a keynote address to the International Olympic Committee's general assembly, the first by a UN secretary-general, officials said Monday.

Ban's visit to Sochi comes after several world leaders decided to skip the games, including U.S. President Barack Obama, German President Joachim Gauck and French President François Hollande. Russia has come under criticism for its human rights record and law against gay "propaganda."

Besides delivering the first-ever keynote speech to the IOC assembly by a UN chief, Ban will be speaking publicly and holding bilateral meetings with world leaders attending the games, Nesirky said.

Student goes on shooting spree

Weapons of choice.
In addition to the small-calibre rifle, the shooter was also carrying a carbine, a short-barrelled rifle

A 10th-grade student with two rifles burst into his Moscow school on Monday, killing his geography teacher and a policeman in front of about 20 students, investigators said. His father played a key role in freeing those students before police stormed the classroom and took his son into custody, the city police chief said.

The student gunman also seriously wounded a second police officer who had responded to an alarm from the school, investigators said.

None of the approximately 400 children in School No. 263 at the time were hurt, said Karina Sabitova, a police spokeswoman. But students were so fearful that some ran from the building with their teachers without stopping to put on coats in below-freezing temperatures. The school in northeast Moscow is for children in grades one through 11.

The ethnic Russian teenager entered the school after threatening its security guard, who managed to hit an alarm before following the student to his classroom, said Vladimir Markin, spokesman for Russia's Investigative Committee, its main investigative agency.

"Without saying a word, he fired several shots at the geography teacher," Markin said.

The shooter fired at least 11 times from a small-calibre rifle, also killing one police officer and wounding a second, Markin said.

The youth's father was immediately called to the school. He spoke to his son on the phone for 15 minutes to try to persuade him to let the 20 or so students in the classroom leave, but the boy refused, Moscow police chief Anatoly Yakunin said in televised remarks.

The father, wearing a bullet-proof vest provided by police, then went into the classroom. About 30 minutes later, the trapped students walked out, leaving the father and son alone in the classroom, and police special forces stormed in, Yakunin said.

Investigators were questioning the father, the classmates, school staff and the security guard to try to determine why the student shot the teacher, Markin said.

The Moscow high school student who investigators say shot dead a teacher and a policeman days before the Sochi Olympics apparently had a nervous breakdown, according to a state official. Russian Investigative Committee spokesman Vladimir Markin told journalists that he believed the gunman, a 16-year-old student, suffered an emotional disorder, saying he had an excellent school record and no apparent conflicts with either teachers or fellow pupils. He was a "straight-A student and most probably he had some kind of emotional breakdown," said Markin. He added that detectives "will examine a computer of the senior student and all details of his private life."

Report. Home prices overvalued by 10%

Canadian home prices are likely about 10 per cent overvalued given the expectations for rising interest rates, TD Bank said in a report Monday.

However, the bank also noted that the overvaluation in markets like Toronto, Vancouver, Montreal and Ottawa is likely more significant than in others across the country.

"These markets will likely feel the pinch from modestly higher interest rates over the next two years more so than others," TD economist Diana Petramala wrote in the report.

She noted that Montreal, Quebec City and Ottawa have been flooded with an overhang of inventory of unsold condos.

"Home prices have weakened in the second half of 2013 as a result and we expect that softness to persist in 2014," Petramala said.

The Canadian Real Estate Association reported last month that sales through its multiple listings service totalled 457,893 homes for 2013, up eight-tenths of a per cent from 2012.

The national average price for homes sold in December was $389,119, up 10.4 per cent from the end of 2012. Excluding Greater Vancouver and the Toronto region, the year-over-year increase was 4.6 per cent.

The Canadian housing market and worries about a real estate bubble have been key concerns for policy-makers for several years. Recent indicators have suggested the market may be headed for a soft landing instead of a bubble bursting, but concerns have persisted.

Marking 10 years today Mark Zuckerberg's baby has reasons to celebrate. Over one billion of us now hold accounts, with a steady increase in monthly users in every region of the world. Stock value has soared past $150 billion after a disastrous initial flotation.

Yet there are growing threats to the global leader.

Facebook's recent output — including recent apps such as Paper, which makes reading easier and integrates with Instagram; and Messenger, a no-frills riff on Snapchat — shows the company is aware its crown is slipping in a white-hot competitive market.

Teenage users are down 25 per cent in the last three years, and the company's own research highlighted "decrease in daily users, specifically among teens" as a leading concern.

The classic formula is no longer enough, and the company is responding with creative gambles.

"The rate of change has to keep pace with both technical innovation, and the changes in consumer taste," Matthew Rhodes, Director at FreshMinds digital strategy consultancy, told Metro.

Zuckerberg himself suggested it would take the next "three to five years" to transition from web to mobile company, in which time rivals such as Twitter and Instagram could have continued their rapid expansion alongside new competitors.

Get your financial future in shape

Savings advice. Two main vehicles available as you map out personal financial goals

VAN BUUREN
For Metro

"Every January, Canadians start thinking about getting fit. And every February, even though we should be thinking about it all year, most Canadians start thinking about retirement," says Dean Owen, a Saskatoon-based financial adviser with Advocis, the Financial Advisors Association of Canada.

Two important retirement savings vehicles are the registered retirement savings plan (RRSP) and the tax-free savings account (TFSA).

RRSPs were introduced by the federal government in 1957 to allow you to save for the future on a tax-sheltered basis. A big advantage is that contributions are tax deductible the year they are made,

Contribution amounts

- RRSPs: 18 per cent of the previous year's earned income
- TFSAs: Up to $5,500 plus any unused contribution room from previous years (up to $5,000 annually from 2009 to 2012)
- Unused contributions for both can be carried forward

Owen said.

"And that gives you an immediate break on your tax bill."

But you will have to pay tax when you withdraw funds from your RRSP down the road. The amount is added to your income that year and taxed at regular rates. There may also be old age security clawbacks based on income.

"Withdrawing from your RRSP may push you into an income bracket where old age security is reduced."

The TFSA was introduced in 2008 and is also a registered account with the federal government. The benefit of a TFSA is that it allows your investment income and capital gains to grow tax-free, Owen said.

"You're never taxed on the growth, and any withdrawal is tax-free."

Also, TFSA funds will not affect eligibility for federal income benefits such as old age security.

The main disadvantage for many people is that TFSA contributions are not tax deductible when you contribute the money.

RRSP or TFSA?

It can be tough to balance the benefits against the disadvantages of both, Owen said. What's important is that you look at both in relation to your personal financial goals and situation.

"My general recommendation is that people with an income over $50,000 invest in both RRSPs and TFSAs. But if your income is below $40,000, an RRSP may not be your first or best choice."

Understanding RRSPs. Mistakes to avoid

 TALBOT BOGGS
Smart Investing

The registered retirement savings plan (RRSP) is a popular vehicle for Canadians to save money on a tax-deferred basis for their retirement.

But RRSPs are not a retirement panacea, and there are a few things investors should be aware of and avoid when it comes to their plans.

"It's really important to understand RRSPs, their benefits, why you should contribute and what you shouldn't do," said Chris Buttigieg, senior manager of wealth planning strategy with BMO Financial Group.

"A lot of people make contributions but don't really understand some of the consequences of RRSPs, such as early withdrawals and benefits like tax-deferred growth."

Perhaps the biggest no-no associated with RRSPs is to withdraw money for any reason other than investing in the first-time homebuyers or lifelong learning plans,

Investors should be aware of RRSP mistakes and avoid them when it comes to savings plans. OLESYA FEKETA/SHUTTERSTOCK which allow you to withdraw certain amounts of money from your RRSP to buy your first home or go back to school and repay it within a certain period of time without paying tax.

The government taxes other early withdrawals very heavily. And there are other penalties.

Once you withdraw the money it is considered income and will be added to your total income, which you are taxed on as well.

Once you have withdrawn the money it is removed from the contribution room available to you and you cannot re-contribute it later. If you have $30,000 contribution room and take out $15,000, you are left with only $15,000 of contribution room.

And once the money is out you have to start over again to save it and you lose the compounding growth that you could have received if it had stayed in.

Many RRSP investors make their contributions to get their tax refund but end up leaving the money sitting in cash where it will make little or no interest. It makes sense to talk to a financial adviser about building a portfolio in your RRSP to maximize gains and limit risk.

"Once you've made your contribution and get your refund why not apply it to some debt like a mortgage or invest it in a tax-free savings account — it's like hitting two birds with one stone," Buttigieg said.

Many people also do not pay attention to their notice of assessment from the tax department after they have filed their income tax, which shows their RRSP deduction limit. You can over-contribute up to $2,000 for a year, but after that you are assessed a one per cent per month penalty.

Many people also overlook dedicating a beneficiary for their RRSPs.

If an RRSP holder dies and does not have a designated beneficiary such as a spouse, partner or dependent children, it can be transferred to the individual's estate and becomes subject to probate fees. It also becomes fully taxable.

"A lot of people simply make the mistake of not thinking about their retirement goals early enough in life and not developing a strategy for what to do with their RRSP savings," Buttigieg said.

PUTTING SEXY BACK IN SEXAGENARIAN

I've always hated the phrase "a woman of a certain age." It implies that once a woman has reached a point in her life when she is no longer considered youthful, her exact age is simply unspeakable.

Many of my friends are turning 30 this year (although some prefer to think of it as the first anniversary of their 29th birthday) and while I still have awhile to go before hit that milestone, I've already started noticing some of the inevitable signs of aging. At my mother's insistence, I recently began a nightly ritual involving anti-aging creams infused with retinol and other gravity-defying serums that I'm convinced have a bigger impact on my bank account than my face.

In honour of her 60th birthday, Christie Brinkley appeared on the cover of this week's People magazine looking absolutely flawless—albeit a bit unnaturally smooth—clad in a bold one-piece bathing suit.

SHE SAYS
Jessica Napier
metronews.ca

Part of me wants to believe that there is an aging portrait of Brinkley rotting away in an attic somewhere, but the blond bombshell insists that her mostly vegan lifestyle and a "joie de vivre" are what keep her looking like a fresh-faced supermodel. Plus her rigorous exercise routine, monthly facials, numerous hair extensions and, of course, a little help from Adobe Photoshop.

Brinkley isn't the only sexagenarian baring her body in the news this week. American Apparel—a clothing retailer renowned for their envelope-pushing campaigns featuring lithe bodies in leotards—recently revealed a new lingerie ad featuring 62-year-old model Jacky O'Shaughnessy. Unlike Brinkley's magazine cover, this image shows a woman with grey hair, lines on her face and folds in her stomach, and she still looks like a total babe. O'Shaughnessy probably has incredible genetics on her side and—if I had to guess—a lifetime dedication to sunscreen, but looking at these striking images of a silver-haired beauty in lace underwear and bright red lipstick gives me hope for the future.

It's refreshing to see women like O'Shaughnessy in the media embracing their age rather than desperately trying to reconstruct their face into some unrecognizable Botox-filled version of their former selves. The older women in my life are some of the most beautiful people I know. Not because they are trying to look younger and deny their true age, but because they take pride in their appearance. When my great aunt passed away last year I can remember admiring how elegant she looked in the hospital bed dressed in her finest pearls, nails polished and her hair immaculately coiffed.

Aging can be a difficult process to come to terms with, but I would rather be who I am now than turn back the clock 10 years. I'll accept that teenage pimples give way to adult wrinkles and feel fortunate that I have such great memories behind each and every laugh line.

Brazil's dark cloud makes waves

Microscopic life

An ominous-looking dark blotch has been spotted stretching 800 km along Brazil's Atlantic coast.

The black formation, pictured by Aqua, a NASA satellite that monitors Earth's water cycle, is actually a bloom made up of microscopic animals known as Myrionecta rubra. Viewed close up, the bloom is red, but a distortion of light on the water means it looks black from orbit. METRO

What is marine bloom?

- Definition. Fast accumulation in the population of algae in water.
- Concentration. Up to millions of cells per millilitre.
- Cause. Result of an excess of nutrients into waters. Higher concentrations of these nutrients lead to increased growth of algae and green plants.

Microorganisms steal from algae

Living a metre below the water surface, Myrionecta rubra are dubbed the thieves of the microbial world: Using a "straw," these fast-swimming unicellular organisms suck out chlorophyll from other algae, and then use the pigment for photosynthesis in order to obtain energy. However, Myrionecta rubra are not known to be toxic to other marine life or humans. METRO

Risk factor

Certain algal blooms can threaten other aquatic organisms and the safety of human drinking water. Blooms can cause damage by blocking sunlight and depleting oxygen required by other aquatic organisms, as well as produce potent toxins that can cause adverse health effects to wildlife and humans.

Matthew McConaughey becomes a hero to the afflicted and a villain to outraged authorities in this fact-based 1980s story of a Texas rodeo playboy who refuses to go quietly after HIV cuts him low. McConaughey lost some 40 pounds for the role of redeemable rogue Ron Woodroof, playing him with a faultless blend of vinegar and honey. Jared Leto is the other hero of this David versus Goliath drama, directed by Quebec's Jean-Marc Vallée. McConaughey and Leto have both been nominated for Oscars, deservedly so, at the March 2 Academy Awards.

Stamped drug bags found at Hoffman's house

A law enforcement official says tests have confirmed there was heroin in at least some of the dozens of plastic packets in a New York City apartment where Philip Seymour Hoffman was found dead.

Officials are working to determine whether the drug was mixed or tainted with anything else. An autopsy was being conducted Monday. Police have been investigating Hoffman's death as an apparent overdose. Law enforcement officials said he was found with a needle in his arm.

Two officials said Monday that at least four dozen small packets were found in the apartment. Some of the one-dose packets were stamped with the ace of hearts symbol, and others with the words "Ace of Spades" and that symbol, another law enforcement official said.

Stamps are common as a form of drug-world branding.

Hoffman's Hunger Games role to remain untouched

'Devastating loss.'

Actor's castmates and co-workers mourn loss, but Hoffman's role in his final films will remain intact save for a small rewrite

scene@metronews.ca

The news of Philip Seymour Hoffman's sudden passing was met with a heartfelt outpouring of grief from fans and those who worked with him.

"Philip Seymour Hoffman was a singular talent and one of the most gifted actors of our generation," Lionsgate, the studio behind the upcoming Hunger Games: Mockingjay Part 1 and 2, said in a written statement. "We're very fortunate that he graced our Hunger Games family. Losing him in his prime is a tragedy, and we send our deepest condolences to Philip's family."

Hoffman played head-games-maker-turned-rebel leader Plutarch Heavensbee in the successful series. It is a pivotal role.

In the wake of the actor's death, questions arose as to whether the uncompleted blockbusters-in-waiting would be completed in time for their scheduled November 21, 2014 for Part 1 and November 20, 2015 for Part 2 release dates.

Hollywood studios have handled the sudden death of cast members in many different ways. In some cases, films are even abandoned.

Production on Something's Got to Give was shut down permanently after Marilyn Monroe's August 1962 barbiturate overdose.

Dark Blood, River Phoenix's final film, was put into cold storage when the young actor died before filming several crucial scenes. But both movies were eventually resurrected. The documentary Marilyn: The Final Days used footage from Monroe's aborted film while Dark Blood sat for 19 years before being finished and shown at film festivals.

Father and son Bruce and Brandon Lee both died early, leaving behind unfinished films. The elder martial arts legend had completed 100 minutes of The Game of Death when a cerebral edema took his life.

Even more tragically, Brandon was killed on the set of The Crow in an accident involving a prop handgun.

Both films were salvaged with the use of stand-ins.

When Oliver Reed collapsed of a heart attack at a Malta pub after out-drinking a group of Royal Navy sailors, the editing crew of Gladiator replaced him digitally in the remaining scenes of the film.

More recently, Heath Ledger unexpectedly died during the production of The Imaginarium of Dr. Parnassus. He was replaced in the surreal story by three actors.

"I just started calling friends of Heath," director Terry Gilliam said. "It's as simple as that."

"Johnny (Depp), Colin (Farrell) and Jude (Law) turned up. It was important that they were friends, because I wanted to keep it in the family. I wanted people who were close to him because, as Colin said when he was doing his part, he was channeling Heath part of the time, so Heath was very much still alive in some sense.

"Contractually, it was supposed to be a Terry Gilliam Film," said Gilliam. "That's what the lawyers said, but I said, 'No way it's going to be that. It's going to be a film from Heath Ledger and friends.' The cast sat around one night and that idea came up and I said, 'This is it. Perfect. That's how we do it.'

As for the upcoming Hunger Games films, reports now confirm that Hoffman completed work on Part 1 and had just seven days left of shooting on Part 2.

His absence will not require any recasting, just a rewrite of one scene. And so Mockingjay Part 2 becomes the final film in Hoffman's remarkable career.

"Words cannot convey the devastating loss we are all feeling right now. Philip was a wonderful person and an exceptional talent, and our hearts are breaking," reads a statement released by The Hunger Games author Suzanne Collins, the films' director Francis Lawrence, producers Nina Jacobson and Jon Kilik and star Jennifer Lawrence.

Honouring Hoffman

Broadway theatres in New York City will dim their marquee lights Wednesday night in memory of Philip Seymour Hoffman, the movie and theatre star who earned three Tony Award nominations. The Broadway League said Monday the lights will be dimmed for one minute starting at 7:45 p.m. Eastern time. Hoffman made his Broadway debut in Sam Shepard's True West with John C. Reilly in 2000 and followed it up three years later with Eugene O'Neill's Long Day's Journey Into Night with Brian Dennehy and Vanessa Redgrave. In 2012, he played a powerful Willy Loman in Death of a Salesman by Arthur Miller under the direction of Mike Nichols. Each time he earned a Tony nod. He also was a longtime supporter of the off-Broadway Labyrinth Theatre Company, where he served as co-artistic director.

OUR TAKE ON THE WORLD OF CELEBRITIES

The Word

Think Miley's act is offensive? She doesn't give a Cyrus

MELINDA TAUB
Metro World News

Miley Cyrus could either be the next Madonna or the next Howard Hughes. The next Michael Jackson or the next, well, Michael Jackson. In other words, she could be an enduring superstar or completely flame out, and a new profile by Ronan Farrow (who knows a few things about growing up in a celebrity bubble) in W makes both possibilities seem equally likely.

Among the details we learn about Miley: She apparently hates to leave her house, doesn't listen to people unless they're talking about music, and relates strongly to Blanche Dubois, the mentally frail heroine of A Streetcar Named Desire.

Some of the things Miley doesn't like to listen to are the accusations that her act, which frequently involves spanking and groping women of colour and little people, is offensive. "I don't give a s—," she says. "I'm not Disney, where they have, like, an Asian girl, a black girl, and a white girl, to be politically correct, and, like, everyone has bright-coloured T-shirts. You know, it's like, I'm not making any kind of statement. Anyone that hates on you is always below you, because they're just jealous of what you have."

Probably it's not a great idea to respond to accusations of racism with, "You're below me." That could be misconstrued. Or correctly construed.

Miley's own cast, though, also spoke out in her defense.

"I say, 'Bah, humbug' to that," African American backup dancer Amazon Ashley says to critics. "Miley treats me with the utmost respect. Twerking is my act. It's what I enjoy; it's who I am."

Little person Brittney Guzman agrees. "When she grabs my boobs, we're just having fun," she says. "It's not degrading."

"We're just having fun" has never sounded so creepy.

Orlando Bloom

Is a new romance in full Bloom for Orlando?

While Orlando Bloom has been enjoying possibly the most amicable divorce in Hollywood history with his split from Miranda Kerr, he also appears to finally be entertaining new prospects again. Bloom was spotted recently at L.A. bar the Roger Room with French actress Nora Arnezeder, and though he was on his best behaviour sources could tell something was up, according to People magazine. "Orlando was there just with a girl and not in a group," a source says. "He knew that there were paparazzi outside so he was being very careful about his behaviour with her." The pair later shared a ride home on his motorcycle.

John Mayer

Recovering tweetaholic Mayer has fallen off the webbed wagon

Look out, Twitter. John Mayer is back on the scene. After making a big deal of quitting the social media forum back in 2010, Mayer logged back on over the weekend with a cheerful, "I'm back. What'd I miss?" His return might have something to do with the fact that his girlfriend, Katy Perry, is the most popular person on Twitter. Or maybe he's gotten over his Twitter-induced writer's block. In 2011, Mayer explained why he had to quit Twitter: "I realized about a year ago that I couldn't have a complete thought anymore, and I was a tweetaholic," he said. "I had four million Twitter followers, and I was always writing on it. And I stopped using Twitter as an outlet and I started using Twitter as the instrument to riff on, and it started to make my mind smaller and smaller. And I couldn't write a song."

Don't let your 2014 resolutions fizzle out

One month in.

Whether it's working out or breaking a habit, there are ways to get back on track

life@metronews.ca

Mark Twain saw the glass as half empty in terms of New Year's resolutions. In January 1863, he wrote "Now is the accepted time to make your regular annual good resolutions. Next week you can begin paving hell with them as usual."

It turns out the great American writer wasn't far off the mark. Research by John Norcross, a professor of psychology at the University of Scranton, found 29 per cent of resolvers had already failed 14 days in and by February that number jumps to 36 per cent.

Mere hours into Jan. 1, I was guzzling Diet Coke straight from a bottle left over from a holiday party, though giving up the stuff was my resolution.

Like many Canadians, my desire to stick to my New Year's resolution quickly fizzled.

The first mistake I made in January was failing to modify my environment, says Norcross. Having soda in the house was akin to walking outside in six-inch heels after a polar vortex and expecting not to slip.

On Jan. 2, I should have poured the pop down the drain, not down my throat. But my will to try went flat and I was back to drinking about two litres of caramel-coloured, aspartame-spiked, carbonated syrup per day.

This was another classic resoler mistake.

"A little slip is not a total fall," said Norcross, a man who has literally written the book on making changes stick.

You will slip. The trick is to dust yourself off and try again, not lie on the ground surrounded by empty pop bottles. Norcross points out a study that showed 71 per cent of eventually successful resolvers said their first slip actually strengthened their resolve.

On Jan. 9, I resolved to white-knuckle my bête-noire anew, determined not to turn red from the embarrassment of failing this time.

So far, I have crushed my habit like those thin aluminum cans that used to fill my recycling bin. While Norcross' research shows by Canada Day 56 per cent of resolvers have given up, that means 44 per cent are still bubbling with optimism.

Twain be damned, in 2014 I'm going to see my glass as half full of soda ... water, thank you very much.

Is your breakfast making you fat?

A salad for breakfast? Don't rule it out. iSTOCK

LINDA CLARKE
Metro World News in New York City

Breakfast is the most important meal of the day, so you better do it right.

According to Dr. Rob Kominiarek in Ohio, if you don't choose wisely, you could be packing on the pounds before noon rolls around.

"The healthy breakfast is made of foods that don't raise your blood sugar," says Kominiarek.

"Foods that raise blood sugar then raise insulin, and insulin is the fat-storage hormone.

"It tells the body to store fat."

"Foods that keep blood sugar stable are foods that enable us to use the available blood sugars and even stored fat."

To maintain stable blood sugars, choose low-glycemic promoting foods, like fresh vegetables (yes, even for breakfast) and fruits.

And opt for whole grains, as unprocessed as possible.

Processed food is more easily broken down in the body, releasing sugars more quickly into the blood stream.

Rolled oats, for instance, are more quickly digested into sugars than steel cut oats, or whole oat groats (grain).

Kominiarek says it doesn't matter what time you eat breakfast, as long as you "feel good throughout the day" and "follow up with healthy meals through the day."

You've seen the chain email that shows walnuts were created in the shape of your brain because they are brain food. And that carrots when cut into rounds look like eyes and are coincidentally good for eyes.

Google it! Kind of cool little quirky facts to kick around.

But the truth is, walnuts are good for lots more than just brains. They are also good for making ho-hum sandwiches, omelets, pastas and salads turn into amazing meals!

• Walnuts have been shown to reduce inflammation overall due to their good fat content.

• They contain high amounts of Omega 3, which has been shown to reduce the incidence of Alzheimer's, depression and ADHD, among other things.

• Walnuts are one of the highest anti-oxidant nuts.

- Consumption of them has been linked to reduced risk of diabetes.

- One study says that they can reduce the stress related to high blood pressure.

Creative ways to use walnuts

- Toss whole and raw into salads.
- Toast and use in place of croutons in soup.
- Grind and add to pastry dough or shortbread.
- Puree into hummus.
- Use as a base for blue cheese appetizers.
- Make a gremolata and use everywhere.

Walnuts pair well in both sweet and savoury applications, plus their crunch and nutrients are good for your brain ('cause that's the way they are shaped — ha!).

With warm mushrooms and melting cheese, this salad makes for the perfect winter dish.

Use any variety of mushrooms you like. The key is to cook the mushrooms on a medium-high heat until all the moisture evaporates.

You can sauté the mushrooms and mix the dressing up to a day in advance. If you do, dress just before serving.

1. Lightly coat a nonstick skillet with cooking spray and sauté the mushrooms over medium heat for about 8 minutes, or just until they are no longer wet and are slightly browned. Respray pan or add 2 tbsp (30 ml) water if mushrooms begin to burn. Keep warm.

2. Dressing: Whisk together the olive oil, balsamic vinegar, mayonnaise, honey, garlic, mustard, and salt and pepper.

3. Place the spinach, arugula, sautéed mushrooms and Parmesan in a large serving bowl. Pour the dressing over the salad and toss. Serve.

Ingredients

Salad

- 3 cups mushrooms, halved
- 4 cups baby spinach
- 4 cups arugula
- 1/2 cup grated Parmesan

Dressing

- 2 tbsp olive oil
- 1 tbsp balsamic vinegar
- 1 tbsp reduced-fat mayonnaise
- 2 tsp honey

Gamblers wagered a record $119.4 million at Nevada casinos on the Super Bowl, allowing sportsbooks to reap an unprecedented profit as the betting public lost out in Seattle's rout of the Peyton Manning-led Denver Broncos.

Unaudited tallies showed sportsbooks made $19.7 million on the action, the Gaming Control Board announced Monday. That's millions more than the past three Super Bowl wins combined.

Bouncing back from a lethargic effort in a 4-0 loss at Boston on Saturday, the Oil-

"We didn't have a very good game in Boston. We let them kind of dictate the game for 60 minutes," Hendricks said. "Tonight, we didn't have our 'A' game either, but we were able to get a road win."

Justin Schultz and Jeff Petry also scored for Edmonton, and David Perron had two assists. Ilya Bryzgalov stopped 42 shots in helping Edmonton snap an 0-5-1 skid against the Sabres dating to a 4-1 win on Oct. 16, 2003.

Adam Silver is taking over the NBA at a good time.

In fact, for five teams, it's a really good time.

Indiana, Miami, Oklahoma City, San Antonio and Portland all enter the week with winning percentages of .700 or better, and that's significant.

Only one other time in league history — 1997-98 — have as many as five teams won at such a rate, that coming in a season when Chicago, Indiana, Utah, Seattle and the Los Angeles Lakers did the honours. It's conceivable that more than five finish with that good a record, with the Los Angeles Clippers and Houston still having realistic shots, too.

So in a season where so much of the narrative has been about how bad many NBA teams are, and with good reason, there's another end of the spectrum to consider as well.

At their current rates, Indiana and Oklahoma City are on pace to finish with two of the top 25 records in NBA history. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

On the flip side...

Milwaukee, meanwhile, would have the 11th-worst mark ever if the season was ending now.

- And going back to last season, including playoffs, the Bucks have lost 55 of their last 67 games (while the Heat have won 63 times in that same span, starting on March 20).

'The pressure's clearly on them'

Hockey. Great things expected from Ovechkin and Malkin's Russians as they enter Sochi as 'centrepiece' of Games

Friends and family have been calling Alex Ovechkin and Evgeni Malkin for months, asking about Olympic tickets and wanting to know who was going to be on the Russian team.

"I field questions about Sochi always," Malkin said. "I feel right now it's pressure for the team, for me. It's everyone."

The Sochi Olympics are a showcase of a generation for Russia and Prime Minister Vladimir Putin, and with that comes the pressure of a lifetime for those taking part in the event the country believes it must win.

"I don't think about it because I don't want to take pressure right now on me," Ovechkin said last month. "But it's kind of hard to do. Every time when I go to the news and on the Internet, I just see about the Olympic Games."

From a hockey standpoint, that means attention on Ovechkin, Malkin, captain Pavel Datsyuk and NHL-star-turned-KHL-hero Ilya Kovalchuk, and the expectation of gold on Feb. 23 at Bolshoy Ice Dome. Anything less isn't an option the Russians want to consider.

Parallels of pressure

"We can relate, for sure. It wasn't that long ago, and we all know how proud of a hockey nation Russia is, too."

Sidney Crosby acknowledges the parallels between his gold-medal-winning Canadian team from four years ago and the 2014 Russians.

suk and NHL-star-turned-KHL-hero Ilya Kovalchuk, and the expectation of gold on Feb. 23 at Bolshoy Ice Dome. Anything less isn't an option the Russians want to consider.

It's similar to what Canada went through in Vancouver in 2010 with a need to show dominance in a national sport. Given that Russia hasn't won gold since 1992, when it played as the Unified Team, there's even more anxiety.

"I think that always goes with the territory," U.S. general manager David Poile said. "It's probably even more so because starting from the top with Putin, he's wanted these Olympics; the centrepiece is the hockey. The whole Sochi is sort

"They're putting literally billions of dollars into this, and there's no question that the hockey is the centrepiece of the Olympics. The pressure's clearly on them. We're going to see the best of the Russians, that's for sure."

Canada proved four years ago that pressure isn't prohibitive to winning; that being at home can be an incentive.

With the whole world watching them in their country, the Russians hope they, too, can capitalize on the home-ice advantage. And Ovechkin believes that mentality is his team's biggest strength.

"(The) most important thing is (it's) us against the whole world," said Ovechkin, who dreamed as a child of representing Russia in a home Olympics. "I don't think somebody is going to be there ... to be just in the Olympic Games. Our mission is to try to win the gold medal and play our best hockey."

The biggest moment of Ben Thomsen's racing career came two years ago in Sochi.

After a tough start to this season, the Canadian alpine skier is hoping to find some of that magic on the same Russian mountain at the Olympics.

Thomsen finished a surprising second at a World Cup downhill event back in February 2012, a result the 22-year-old believes will give him an edge at the Games.

"I'm definitely confident going back there. It was a huge part of my life and changed my life drastically," Thomsen said.

"It will be interesting to see what kind of feelings and emotions come up when I get there."

The Invermere, B.C., native has had a mixed bag of results during his career, threatening the podium at some events while struggling badly at others. Thomsen's recipe for success seems to be simple — don't overthink it.

"As I look back on my career, the times that I've done really well is when I don't really know what I'm about to face and I'm just going into it full bore," he said. "If I know a situation might be a little tricky I might kind of back off the throttle a little bit."

It is important over the next 24 hours that you know when to speak up and when to stay silent. Important people will be either impressed or annoyed by what you have to say, so make sure you say the right thing.

Leo

July 24 - Aug. 23

It might be tempting to work even harder and faster but you will accomplish more in the long-term if you start slowly and think about what you are doing.

Virgo

Aug. 24 - Sept. 23

You may want to push ahead with a project that is close to your heart but according to the planets a colleague is having doubts and you must deal with those doubts first if you want to make progress.

Libra

Sept. 24 - Oct. 23

Anyone who thinks you are not ambitious will get a shock today as you push yourself harder than ever. But while it is okay to be hard on yourself it is not okay to be hard on friends and loved ones.

Scorpio

Oct. 24 - Nov. 22

You need to ask the right questions today and to do so you need to see your life for what it is, not what you wish it might be. Be completely honest with yourself.

Sagittarius

Nov. 23 - Dec. 21

According to the planets someone you work with is not being entirely straight with you. Before you go any further together in what you are working on demand to know where they are coming from.

Capricorn

Dec. 22 - Jan. 20

Someone whose point of view is very different to your own will say something that you cannot let pass and most likely you will end up having a major argument. But that's OK. It's wrong to remain silent.

Aquarius

Jan. 21 - Feb. 19

If you put your mind to it today you can change something about yourself that you have disliked for a very long time. How will you do that? By replacing a bad habit with a good habit.

Pisces

Feb. 20 - March 20

You are so self-confident at the moment that you can't see the obstacle that is ahead of you. You will see it soon, in the meantime, ignorance is bliss. SALLY BROMPTON
